Designer's Assembly Notes:

- It may be easier to attach the Clover beads when the links are separate, rather than after the links are connected.
- If you decide to use a safety chain, connect the chain via the last two 7.5mm jump rings between the last Celtic link and the Almond strand reducer at each end. Use both jump rings on each end (4 total) for best security.

Designer's Assembly Notes:

- Use of a safety chain is optional but I find them almost necessary with small toggle clasps. If you decide to use a safety chain, you should attach it using the wire protectors, not the jump rings.
- You may need to ream the holes in the pearls, especially toward the ends where you'll want to double back your wire through the pearls again.

Designer's Assembly Notes:

- When stringing your bracelet, you may want to start with the middle strand. I find it's easier to start from the middle and work my way out when dealing with multiple strands.
- It may also be helpful to ream the holes in your pearls a bit, especially on the ends where you'll want to double back your wire through the pearls again.
- This bracelet measures approximately 7 and 7/8 inches from end to end as shown in the bottom picture.

Designer's Assembly Notes:

- I strongly suggest attaching the charm drops and safety chain (if you choose) to the middle loops of the links before stringing your beads. Because of the size of the Coffee Beans, getting your tools between them and the links to close a jump ring (while holding everything on the jump ring) can be quite challenging.
- To personalize this as a gift for Mother's Day add the "Mom" charm drop on the opposite side while still keeping the "Made with Love" charm drop as shown.
